Trap and Crap removal

John Krieger and Ocean Defenders headed out just outside of LA Harbor entrance to do a scouting dive as three whales were entangled over three weeks. The first dive netted about 30 pounds of line, but the second dive in about 60 feet of water brought up over 500 pounds of traps and line.

"This is exactly the kind of crap that the whales get entangled in when they traverse through our waters.

It sure was GREAT to be back in action again! Thanks to the entire crew, both the on the water, and shore based. We could never accomplish all we do with all of you pitching in (Kurt)".
